TEENS ADD FLOWERING PLANTS TO MCCOY GARDEN

A group of teenagers recently cut back rose bushes, trimmed the hedge and planted flowering shrubs – magenta-colored rockroses – in the rejuvenated Gladys McCoy Memorial Garden that has been taking shape since summer 2020.

Volunteers, most from gardening groups and churches, have cleared weeds and overgrown shrubbery from the garden on Northeast Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard and Knott Street, developed as a memorial to the first Black woman elected to public office in Oregon.

Betsy Brumm, who worked with McCoy when she served on the Multnomah County Commission, said, “She helped a lot of people. Her whole mission was to help people.”

McCoy was elected to the Portland Public Schools Board in 1970. She became the state’s first ombudsman in 1976. She served as a county commissioner from 1979-1984. She was elected county chair in 1987, serving until 1993 when she died of thyroid cancer.

Venerable Booker, a friend who owned the property, started the garden shortly after McCoy’s death. He died in 2005 and, apparently, no one was designated to care for the memorial. His heirs, through their lawyer, welcomed renewed interest in the garden. The drought-tolerant rockroses were planted in October by newly confirmed teens at Westminster Presbyterian Church.

McCoy, Brumm said, “was probably one of the kindest people I’ve ever known.” In addition, Brumm said, “She was fun to work with.”

As a commissioner, McCoy received letters from state prisoners seeking her help with their cases, Brumm said. Other people sought her help, too, for a variety of reasons. In some cases, Brumm said, she would reply “I don’t know that I can fix the problem, but I’ll look into it.” Gladys took the time to read their letters.”

As a public figure, McCoy was sometimes criticized for not speaking forcefully about issues, but that wasn’t her way, Brumm said. “She was very much poised and thoughtful before she spoke. She cared about people.”

BUSINESS GROUPS SEEK MORE POLICE ATTENTION

Business people in several neighborhoods are pressuring city council to provide greater response to break-ins, gun violence, broken windows and late-night rowdiness.

One effort is in Kenton, where break-ins are plaguing businesses along North Denver Avenue. In addition, one bar had two armed robberies in a month and gun violence has occurred, said

Maureen Bachman, president of the Kenton Business Association.

Bar and restaurant owners and managers along Northeast Broadway are creating a coalition to deal collectively with late-night rowdy behavior, car racing and gun threats they say have developed recently between Northeast 24th and Seventh avenues.

A group of owners and managers aired concerns at a Sullivan’s Gulch Neighborhood Association meeting, which was also attended by representatives from the Irvington Community Association. The two neighborhoods border Northeast Broadway.

Both the Broadway and Kenton groups want more police presence in their areas. The Broadway group said they would like a return to the Community Policing system that helped officers and neighborhood people stay in regular contact with one another.

Kenton organized a recent community letter-writing event and sent more than 100 letters to city council advocating an immediate, fully-funded and city-wide expansion of Portland Street Response, which assists people experiencing homelessness or behavioral issues.

Kenton also wants more public safety specialists, who are non-police employees handling non-emergency calls, walking patrols and following up on police reports. The letters also request improved lighting to replace old, dim lighting in the Kenton business district. Another request is a $10,000 investment for exterior security cameras on the business district blocks.

Kenton neighbors also suggested that police drive along Denver Avenue when clearing other calls in the area. For instance, when completing a call at Delta Park and heading toward a call on, for instance, Lombard Street, travel along Denver Avenue instead of going around Kenton, Bachman said.

“Neighborhood people want to support local businesses and to keep everyone safe,” said Dave Brook, president of the Sullivan’s Gulch Neighborhood Association.

Mayor Ted Wheeler favors expanding the Portland Street Response program, tested in Southeast Portland’s Lents neighborhood. Hiring a staff trained to work on behavioral issues may be a challenge and will take time, he said.

PROPOSAL ACCEPTED FOR NEW AFFORDABLE HOUSING IN MONTAVILLA

The Portland Housing Bureau, following reviews by technical and community committees, has accepted a proposal for new affordable housing at Northeast 74th Avenue and Glisan Street, according to spokeswoman Martha Calhoon.

Work on the 137 apartments may begin in about two years, Calhoon estimated. The development team includes Catholic Charities, Immigrant and Refugee Community of Oregon and Related NW.

The property is owned by Metro. Five proposals were submitted for consideration, with Metro bond funds to be used for capital construction.

In October, a non-profit serving East African immigrants and refugees announced that it planned to develop its “Dream Center” with housing on the site. The non-profit, the African Youth and Communication Organization (AYCO), has been leasing the former Trinity Broadcasting building on Glisan Street from Metro for the past year.

AYCO teamed with REACH Community Development, which builds and rents low-income housing, to submit a proposal for the site. However, that proposal was rated third of the five plans reviewed by a technical and financial feasibility review committee and a community review committee, Calhoon said.

“AYCO has been an invaluable partner to the city and Portland Housing Bureau in distributing rent assistance throughout the pandemic – particularly in our efforts to reach and engage with immigrant communities, people of color, and households with limited English proficiency,” Calhoon said. “We look forward to ways we may collaborate with AYCO in the future. A full debrief session with REACH, who was the lead development partner on the proposal, and Mr. (Jamar) Dar (AYCO executive director) is being scheduled.”

YOUNG ARTIST ADDS SPARKLE TO WALL

A young artist, Joshua Wilson-Day, has added the sparkle of a diamond ring to the Miller Jewelry building at Northeast 42nd Avenue and Sandy Boulevard. Jayne Freshour, who lives several blocks away, stopped to admire the work and photograph Wilson-Day as he worked.

The artist, who grew up in the Cully neighborhood, graduated from McDaniel High School. The giant ring on the Miller building is his first commercial painting commission.

CITY OFFERS A REBATE FOR PLANTING A TREE

Neighbors may get a one-time credit on their water bill by planting trees in their yards before April 30, 2022. The city makes the offer because trees intercept rainwater, reduce storm runoff into the sewer system and cut pollution in rivers. Trees also help reduce temperatures during hot weather.

Applications for the program must be approved and trees must be purchased and planted before the end of April. Trees must be planted in the yard of a single-family house or duplex. If the applicant doesn't own the property, the owner must approve the plan.

Planted trees should be 4 feet tall, measured from the top of the soil. At maturity, each tree should be at least 15 feet tall and 10 feet wide and planted with enough space to reach its full size.

Information about the rebate program is available at www.portland.gov/bes/treebate. The city offers other programs to help neighbors plant trees. They may be viewed at www.portland.gov/treeplanting. The city's tree hotline is 503-823-8733.

goers can login on mobile phones, tablets or laptops at www.irvingtonpdx.com/home-tour through Nov. 30.

Over the years, the association has given more than $400,000, primarily to groups serving youth and seniors, Eaton said.

CREATE CARDS, ARTWORK TO SHARE WITH SENIORS

Children and their families or individuals can share the warmth of Thanksgiving by creating greetings for seniors and others through November 17, said Julie Ann Barowski, volunteer program manager at the Community for Positive Aging.

Greeting cards, letters or drawings expressing the season may be mailed or delivered to the Hollywood Senior Center, 1820 N.E. 40th Ave. They will be delivered to seniors and others who may be cheered by the greetings, Barowski said. Additional information is available by email at julieann.barowski@communityfpa.org or by telephone at 503-288-8303 ext. 109.

TWO NORTHEAST STUDENTS WIN TOP PRIZE IN BIKE ART

Students who use the Hollywood and Albina library branches have won first place in the 2021 Bike to Books design contest, sponsored by the Multnomah County Library and the Portland Bureau of Transportation.

This is the fifth year that students have entered the contest to design original art for the city's bike lanes. More than 360 unique designs were entered this year. Staff from the transportation bureau and the library reviewed and voted on the entries in three categories.

Yael Siegel submitted "Portland Goat Bike" to the Hollywood library, winning first place in the third to sixth grades category. Top winner in the seventh to twelfth grades category was Mitzi Duplain, who submitted "Donut Bike" to the Albina library. Marco De Leso submitted his winning drawing of "Roarcycle," with a fire-breathing dragon, to the Woodstock library in the pre-K to second grade category. Designs may be viewed at www.portland.gov/transportation/safe-routes-school/bike-books-digital-design-contest.

SOCCER CLUB SEEKS NEW BOARD MEMBERS

The Hollywood Soccer Club, which helps youngsters build relationships while having fun, is seeking board members and a communications director who can manage the website and social media messages.

The club draws team members largely from the Hollywood, Grant and Rose City Park communities. Board positions open up as kids age out of the program. More information is available from hwcsecretary@gmail.com.

CORRECTION

When a neighbor takes up her tongs to grab trash and set an example for cleaning up the city, the least we can do is give her the correct name. She's Gretchen Newmark, not "another little girl German name," as she described it, that we erroneously wrote in the October issue.

And, while the Star likes to spread news you can use to reclaim the city, we took too much credit for alerting people to join Gretchen Newmark for one of her weekly clean-up sessions in Harold Kelley Plaza, at Northeast 42nd Avenue, off Sandy Boulevard. She actually attracted them through nextdoor.com, she said.

However, she added, "Teresa, my long-lost gym friend, who is now my regular cleaning helper, found me through your first article." In addition, Teresa was thrilled to find out about AdoptOneBlock, the nonprofit organization that gave Gretchen Newmark her tongs and trash bucket to help beautify the city. I-5 ROSE QUARTER INFO GATHERED IN ONE PLACE

Improvement of Interstate 5 around the Rose Quarter is a complex issue. Bringing many discussions together in one place could help with understanding. That's the goal of the I-5 Rose Quarter Improvement Project Blog Watch, an on-line compilation that captures a variety of voices and vital information about the improvement project.

Several social media pages, including discussions from Portland Prime, Oregon Business and Building Communities about the I-5 project have themes centering on construction as a wealth creation model, women in construction as part of the project's diversity, and youth earning a living wage in construction after high school graduation.

While traffic in the area needs improvement, many deep community issues are wrapped up in the project's development. The I-5 Rose Quarter Improvement Project Blog Watch is growing into a platform where the public can see and hear those issues discussed. The blog watch, including videos and audio clips on an array of issues related to the I-5 project, can be found by visiting www.resourcescholarsshow.com.

LOCATION SELECTED FOR NEW OPERATIONS CENTER BY LIBRARY PROJECT TEAM

Multnomah County Library's capital bond project team, after considering several locations for the library's new operations center, selected the southwest corner of Northeast 122nd Avenue and Glisan Street, the site of a former Safeway grocery store.

The first real estate acquisition for the bond, the operations center has been characterized as "... the beating heart of many library services, where new books and materials will come into the library system, many items will be placed on hold, sorted and transferred, and where specialized materials and services for outreach to schools, retirement communities, shelters and other settings will be centered."

Hennebery Eddy Architects are leading the design of the new operations center, Fortis Construction is the general contractor, and the library Capital Bond Projects Team is looking forward to the 2023 completion of the new building. For more information, visit www.multcolib.org.

NEW BRIDGE OVER I-84 NAMED IN HONOR OF CONGRESSMAN

Two-thirds of the newest span over I-84 was coaxed into place in October, and work continues on the rest of the structure along with pedestrian plazas at both ends. Construction on the Blumenauer Bridge shut down part of I-84 for a weekend.

When opened in the summer of 2022, the 475-foot bridge will serve as a pedestrian and biking connection between two of the city's fastest growing neighborhoods, the Lloyd district and the Kerns neighborhood in the city's central eastside. In the future, the span will also serve as an important link in the city's Green Loop.

Crossing seven lanes of I-84 traffic, two active railroad lines and Sullivan's Gulch, the completed bridge will have a ten-foot-wide pedestrian path and a 14-foot-wide path for two-way bicycle traffic. Seismically resilient, it will also serve as a backup route for emergency vehicles over I-84.

Called "Sullivan's Crossing" during design and development, the bridge was officially named the Congressman Earl Blumenauer Bicycle and Pedestrian Bridge in May 2019 to honor the congressman's decades-long cycling and pedestrian issue advocacy.

HOUSING BUREAU SUBMITS NINE AFFORDABLE PROJECTS

The city's housing bureau has submitted nine new affordable housing projects to be funded under Metro's regional affordable housing bond, approved in 2018. Joining four other projects in development, the total of more than 1200 affordable housing units brings the Metro Bond housing goal to 83 percent.

"Thanks to the bureau, Metro and voters who supported this vital investment in affordable housing, families, communities of color and Portlanders leaving homelessness will all benefit from new housing options supported by the Metro bond," said Housing Commissioner Dan Ryan.

The housing bond dedicates $652.8 million to the development of 3900 units of affordable housing in the Metro housing. From those funds, the city was granted $211 million, with the goal of creating 1475 affordable housing units, including 605 deeply affordable units (30 percent of median income) and 737 family-sized units.

These projects will increase the bureau's existing affordable housing pipeline to 2900 new units in development, joining another 3400 total units already opened by the housing bureau since the city council declared a housing state of emergency in October of 2015.

OVERLOOK'S INTERSTATE FIREHOUSE COULD BECOME CENTER FOR BLACK CULTURE

Following the Interstate Firehouse Cultural Center advisory committee recommendation to redevelop the hundred-year-old building into a site where "the Portland Black community's history, arts and culture contributions be presented, displayed, discussed and honored," the city has issued a request for proposals to develop a feasibility study to produce market, financial and operational analyses and determine a sustainable operating plan for the center.

With funding from a voter-approved 2020 local option parks levy and the city's additional money from the federal American Rescue Plan, development is moving toward a residency program to support Black artists at the center.

“The community advisory committee’s vision for the cultural center reflects the vision of a more inclusive parks and recreation system,” said Parks Commissioner Carmen Rubio. “We want our valued community partners to have a meaningful stake in Portland Parks and Recreation and to feel ownership of their important role in the bureau.”

The Cultural Center, located at 5340 N. Interstate Ave., was founded in 1982 by the city’s first African American elected official, the late Commissioner Charles Jordan. The building, originally constructed in 1910 as a fire station and in use until 1959, was then renovated to contain a 99-seat theater, gallery and rehearsal studio. To see project updates, visit www.portland.gov/parks/construction.

RIBBON CUT AT DE LA SALLE NORTH CATHOLIC SCHOOL

De La Salle North Catholic High School’s renovation and construction of its new Cully campus has been completed, and a ribbon cutting ceremony was held on October 22. Located at 4300 N.E. Killingsworth St., the school shares space with St. Charles Parish, which operated a Catholic grade school on the site from 1950 to 1986.

“We began our search for a new home more than five years ago and it has been a roller coaster as we navigated through the search, the agreement with St. Charles, the design of the new campus, the fundraising for the new school and the global pandemic. Our school serves as a hub of opportunity for the youth of Portland as well as a place of ministry for St. Charles parishioners,” said School President Oscar Leong.

A $26-million capital campaign was completed in two phases over 30 months. It included $20.5 million in funding for the renovation of the academic wing and new construction of the commons, courtyard and parking lot. Phase Two raised $5.5 million needed for a gymnasium and additional campus costs. The new Cully school can hold more than 350 students, with a private courtyard, new commons, state-of-the-art science labs, a specialized art classroom and a competition-sized gym.

“We’re especially excited about the Michael Kelley Gymnasium, which provides a new, long-deserved home for our two-time state championship-winning boy’s basketball, girl’s basketball and volleyball teams, as they’ve never had one before,” said Leong.

The school welcomed 274 students on September 7, while construction finished on the commons and gymnasium.

CITY HONES INFILL CODE TO MEET STATE DEADLINE

The city’s residential infill project staff have been meeting with neighborhood associations, district coalitions and community-based organizations to help coordinate city code with new state laws.

Dubbed “RIP2,” project implementation details must be completed by July 1, 2022, to meet the state’s deadline. Failure to meet the deadline would force the city to use the state’s model code, not coordinated with the city’s existing zoning regulations.

Additional work is required for the city to be in full compliance with House Bill 2001 and Senate Bill 458, requiring cities to allow middle housing to be subdivided into individual lots to streamline homeownership options. For example, a fourplex could be built on a lot and then split into four smaller lots, each containing one dwelling unit.

RIP2 also targets other state mandates like expanding middle housing options to include the low-density zones, introduces cottage clusters to single dwelling zones and allows attached houses at the same densities as fourplexes. For more information, visit www.portland.gov/bps/rip2.

NOVEMBER OFFERS LAST CHANCE TO GET FREE TREES

Two November Saturday events will give neighbors a last chance in 2021 to acquire free lawn trees for their property. On November 6, free yard trees will be given away at Trinity Lutheran Christian School, 5520 N.E. Killingsworth St., and on November 20, at the Portland Parks and Recreation maintenance Yard next to Mt. Tabor Park, 6437 S.E. Division St.

Free delivery is available to homes in the Sumner neighborhood. Staff will also deliver and plant trees for people who need accommodation. Anyone living in the city is eligible for up to two free trees to plant on private property. Advance registration is required at www.portland.gov/trees.

IT'S SHOWTIME ON BROADWAY

As we nestle into fall, I'm thankful we have so many locally-owned businesses on Broadway in the tree-lined Sullivan's Gulch neighborhood. You can step into Indie Ella at 1914 N.E. Broadway and be swept away by Boho home decor and fashion made from recycled silk saris. Plants on Broadway is a new shop across from Pets on Broadway at 2755 N.E. Broadway. America's biggest flag and banner shop, Elmer's Flag and Banner, has been supplying flags, kites, and yard decorations since 1963 at 1332 N.E. Broadway. Broadway Import Auto Service provides quality automotive service and repair at 3001 N.E. Broadway. Why not take a fall walk and explore Broadway and Sullivan's Gulch?

MILO'S CITY CAFE

Milo's City Cafe has been serving neighborhood food and drinks seven days a week for over 20 years. Stop by and try the delicious menu from their scratch kitchen, along with Milo's new Build Your Own Bloody Mary or Mimosa Bar.

"Everybody meets at Milo's" is their motto, so you may see friends and neighbors there. This local favorite American cafe serves interesting, creative, and affordable cuisine, owned and operated by Northeast Portland neighbors Jeff and Pam Munden.

Don't miss their seasonal November Weekend Specials and the rotating fall special – often waffles – as well as a year-round favorite smoked salmon Benedict.

Milo's brunch is amazing. Starters include warm croissants, baked scones, fruit boards and authentic Italian doughnuts, served with chocolate chip-ricotta cream, followed by a selection of omelets and scrambles with potatoes, a house made biscuit with honey butter, eggs and bacon, pancakes, French toast, Belgian waffles, chicken waffles and a selection of sides. Top that off with a brunch cocktail, coffee or tea, hot chocolate or fresh juice.

Then there's lunch! Choose from soups, salads, burgers, sandwiches, fish and chips, chicken, fresh linguini, and the delicious comfort food goes on. They even have a kid's menu for children under 10, so the whole family can enjoy a delicious and affordable time together.

The Munden's are proud to continue the Milo's legacy that Loren and Marianne Skogland began more than 20 years ago. You'll often see Jeff and Pam's children, Andrew, Danielle and Alex bussing tables or working as servers and hosts. The Munden's have a passion for hospitality, coupled with serving fresh, high quality food in a casual and fun atmosphere. Stop by soon. Hours are Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

ADDRESS: 1325 N.E. Broadway. PHONE: 503-288-6456. WEBSITE: www.milocitycafe.com. DON'T MISS: Sign up for the newsletter for exclusive specials, offers and invites. The beautiful mural and art for sale on the walls is by local artist Christian Lancour.

BROADWAY PHYSICAL THERAPY

Since 2002, Broadway Physical Therapy has provided personal attention to patients of all ages and their families. Owner Ellen Grover, and her experienced physical therapists Anne Bower, Matt Flood and Ryan Cook will evaluate and create a treatment to fit your specific needs using a variety of specialties and certifications that ensure a comprehensive diagnosis and treatment plan. The clinic is equipped with a bright and open gym, treatment rooms and a variety of tools to assist in recovery.

Physical therapists are movement experts who work with patients to resume life, recreation, work and sports with improved efficiency and less pain. The Broadway team includes specialists in orthopedics, sports conditioning, bike fit and the McKenzie method.

Broadway Physical Therapy can help you prepare for winter sports with strength and proper flexibility training. This can range from cardiovascular training for cross-country skiing or snowshoeing to plyometric training for skiing and snowboarding. They are known for assisting patients with orthopedic injuries, including recovery from motor vehicle injuries, on-the-job injuries, foot, ankle and knee rehabilitation, post-operative care and shoulder rehabilitation.

The Broadway team also interacts with the community and enjoys working with local high schools and colleges, offering students the opportunity to shadow physical therapists and make informed career decisions. Although the staff enjoys the puzzle-solving of orthopedic medicine, they also enjoy talking to and getting to know their patients on a personal level.

Broadway Physical Therapy strives to create a comfortable atmosphere for improving health, with handicap and bicycle parking available directly in front of the building and no stairs to negotiate. The clinic is open for standard care as well as Telehealth appointments and most insurance is accepted.

ELIZABETH LAVENUE VOCAL STUDIO, VOICE TEACHER, SOUND HEALER AND OFFICIANT

From her beautiful top floor studio in Sullivan's Gulch, Elizabeth Lavenue offers a number of ways to connect clients to joy, their voice, inner healing and each other. As a deep listener, she brings inclusive intuitive awareness and a good sense of humor to all her client work, from teenagers to adults, Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

As a voice teacher and coach, Elizabeth draws from 30 years of experience to connect students with their singing and speaking voice as an instrument for healing and expression. For deep relaxation, centering and a stronger connection to purpose and presence in daily life, Elizabeth offers the Japanese energy-work reiki technique, or shamanic sessions using voice and drum. Elizabeth also teaches a powerful eight-week meditation course for both beginners and advanced meditators.

In 2019, Elizabeth became an ordained, non-denominational minister and now performs customized weddings, celebrations of life and other ceremonies. In the community, she's co-creating an online program to improve the recovery and well being of those with lung conditions through singing and breath work. Classes will tentatively start in March. Elizabeth is using her voice and talents to help teens and adults in the community find, strengthen and heal their own voice.

WEBSITES: www.elizabethlavenue.com, www.deeply-listening.com, www.pdxmusicminister.com www.singtobreathe.org. DON'T MISS: Private voice, reiki, shamanic journey and meditation sessions online or in person for the fully vaccinated. Beginning in January an eight-week class series "Meditation and Mantra" will be offered.

STEEPLEJACK BREWING

Located in a former landmark church with stained glass windows, Steeplejack is a new, family-friendly, ADA accessible, full-service brewery, bar and restaurant. Every Steeplejack beer is produced onsite. You can even meet the brewers Anna Buxton and Anne Aviles while they're brewing! Chef Lawrence Gable brings more than a decade of experience and is excited to cook with seasonal foods from local farms. The menu changes, according to what is fresh and available. In November, Steeplejack is rolling out a brunch menu to complement their coffee program. Their most popular dish, a fried chicken sandwich, is brined in buttermilk and tempura battered, which gives it a light texture with just the right blend of tartness from house made pickles and spicy peanut sauce.

The Steeplejack online calendar is filled with trivia events, game nights, private brewery tasting tours, and live music. Catch the soulful hip-hop and jazz of the Miguel Hernandez Quartet on November 4, or longtime Ben Larson's multi-instrumentalist singer and songwriter chops on November 18. All concerts are free and start at 7 p.m. Reservations are suggested for parties of eight or more.

Steeplejack owners Brody Day and Dustin Harder care about, live in, and love the Sullivan's Gulch and Irvington neighborhoods. They are dedicated to being a vibrant part of our community. They hold fundraisers, partner with organizations that directly benefit those in need, and waive all Steeplejack room rental charges for nonprofits.

Plenty of outdoor picnic tables allow space for the family or dogs to join in the fun. Order food and drinks using the QR code on the table, or from a server. Indoors, you'll find a massive open central area with high-beamed ceiling and stained glass windows. Little side rooms are available, like the Sports Lounge with two 75-inch televisions and foosball table, the Whisky Lounge with a small fireplace and leather couch, the Coffee Lounge and the Fireside Room. All offer a state-of-the-art filtration system that completely changes the air every 20 minutes, using UV light for disinfection. Open seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., enjoy the food, fun, and drinks, and if you want to take some tasty beverage home, order beer to go in a crowler, growler or keg.

ADDRESS: 2400 N.E. Broadway. PHONE: 503-206-8880. WEBSITE: www.steeplejackbeer.com. DON'T MISS: Belgian beer releases every week in November. Thursday night live music series. Subscribe to newsletter or follow Instagram #steeplejackbeer for updates.

HOLLADAY PARK PLAZA

Located in the heart of Sullivan's Gulch, Holladay Park Plaza has a rich history in the neighborhood. For more than 50 years, Holladay Park has served as a pillar in the community, both as an amenity-filled residence for seniors, and a quality workplace for many neighbors.

Holladay Park Plaza is a non-profit, continuing care, retirement community, offering a meaningful lifestyle focused on whole-body health and wellness. On campus residents enjoy two dining venues, state-of-the-art fitness facilities, a pool and sauna, a library, art studio, workshop and a roof-top lounge and walking track. Educational seminars, interest groups, live concerts and other programming encourage residents to be active in body, mind and spirit.

Also located onsite are the Wise Buys Resale and Gift Shop and Bella Gente Hair Salon. Both are open to the masked public.

Holladay Park residents have a long history of being active in the surrounding community, volunteering through many organizations, including the SMART reading program, the Northeast Community Food Bank and R2D2 - which helps to support the homeless.

Not only is Holladay Park a wonderful and engaging place to live, it's also a meaningful place to work. In addition to offering a generous benefits package, residents contribute to a yearly scholarship and appreciation fund.

Residents and staff together make up the Holladay Park family. With many restaurants and shops in easy walking distance and bus lines right outside the front entrance Holladay Park has much to offer in an exciting neighborhood. You may request an in-person tour or find out about current career opportunities by visiting the website.

ADDRESS: 1300 N.E. 16th Ave. PHONE: 503-288-6671. WEBSITE: www.retirement.org/hpp. DON'T MISS: Annual "Holladay" bazaar November 4, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. with resident hand-crafted items including homemade soup mixes, dish towels, watercolors, notecards, poetry books, international trinkets and more. ★

★ STAR SUSTAINABILITY MADE SIMPLE

By Kate Gaertner and Amy Hall

For the Hollywood Star News

There are very few “things” we need as humans to live a good and contented life. The stuff we buy – the tools and gadgets we use, the things we surround ourselves with and what we put on our bodies – are sometimes needed, often desired but not necessarily used on a daily, weekly or monthly basis. For those non-consumable items in our life, let’s consider a different form of ownership, use and reuse. As much as possible, the material goods that make up our consumption economy can be shared, live multiple lives and be revalorized for another day, another user and for another purpose.

THREE MATERIAL GOODS SUSTAINABILITY TIPS

EXPLORE OUTDOOR GEAR WITHOUT SERIOUS COMMITMENT OR INVESTMENT:

Try something new and get adventurous at Northeast Portland’s Mountain Shop. Enjoy the outdoors inexpensively with a two-night camping rental that accommodates up to three people for just $50. The nearly 85-year-old camping shop mainstay also extends a “try before you buy” offer to customers, allowing would-be camping lovers to apply the cost of rental gear towards a purchase only after the investment is deemed worthwhile. And given the remaining uncertainties of the pandemic, leasing ski gear is a great way to pursue winter activities without the burden of ownership. Mountain Shop’s Nordic lease option is an affordable way to get your hands on skis, boots and poles during the September through May peak season.

SAVE MONEY ON SPECIALIZED TOOLS YOU USE INFREQUENTLY:

Stop buying expensive tools you only see yourself using once. Borrow them instead. Northeast Portland Tool Library in the Alberta district offers a membership option to all Northeast neighbors west of 82nd. “Check out” specialized tools just like you would a book from your local library for a week at a time. From metalworking to drywall and even masonry tools, the Tool Library has an impressive collection of tools to rent for the Northeast community and its residents. And for North Portland neighbors who may be momentarily slighted, don’t be. The North Portland Tool Library offers a similar tool rental program for you, housed in the Old Kenton Firehouse.

EMBRACE CIRCULAR CONSUMPTION HABITS:

Eschew single-use purchases and take advantage of the growing durable and refillable models movement. Null Refinery, founded by Northeast Portland neighbor Antje, is a neighborhood refill store located on 24th and Sandy, offering refillable ingredients for those areas in our life where we consume regularly and frequently: in the kitchen, laundry, and bath and for our body. Null Refinery also offers delivery service to existing and prospective customers to make it just a little bit easier to reduce their (perceived) dependence on single-use plastic products.

Rose City Park Climate Communications Expert Amy Hall and Sustainability Consultant Kate Gaertner write this monthly column with ideas that neighbors can implement to live more sustainable lives and combat climate change. Hall is co-founder of Thrive Creative, and also works at TripleWin Advisory, a corporate sustainability consultancy founded by Gaertner. Gaertner is the author of the book ‘Planting a Seed: Three Simple Steps to Sustainable Living,’ now available for purchase at Powell’s Books. ★

PURRINGTON'S CAT LOUNGE IS OPEN

BY LISA LAKES

LISALAKES@STAR-NEWS.INFO

The mission at Purrington's Cat Lounge is to assist The Cat Adoption Team in placing adoptable cats. (Purrington's Cat Lounge) ultimately found homes.

While the lounge is open, there are some changes to be aware of. To ensure a place in the lounge, reservations are needed. The lounge is limited to ten persons at a time. You can make a reservation online and arrive a little early to order beverages and snacks. Admittance to the lounge occurs on the hour and clients have 45 minutes to visit with the cats. The lounge is sanitized after each visitation period. Clients not wanting to enter the lounge can arrive anytime.

The menu has been reduced somewhat to focus on small plates and snacks. This limits the amount of time people have their masks down. Snacks, pastry, coffee drinks, beer, wine and cider are some of the available choices.

Harris commented that people are feeling “joyful and grateful” to be able to interact with the cats or other humans visiting the lounge. It is clear that people are still motivated to adopt. “There is almost more demand than we can keep up with,” Harris said.

Since many low cost spay and neuter clinics closed during the pandemic, Harris and Garrett were concerned about a surge in feline overpopulation. But that concern has not materialized. Purrington's has a good selection of cats available for adoption or for visiting.

It is very important that you make a reservation online, since walk-ins to the lounge cannot be accommodated. You will be admitted on the hour to the lounge. If you are ready for some furry company, are contemplating adopting, or just want to visit with friends in a peaceful environment check out Purrington's.

Groups network to help food insecure

By Nancy Varekamp

nancyvarekamp@star-news.info

Dozens – if not scores – of organizations share their concern for their food-insecure neighbors, and they network to share the bounty they gather.

The largest among them is local, the Oregon Food Bank on Northeast 33rd Avenue. It collects financial and food donations and disseminates supplies to 1400 food assistance sites, 21 regional food banks and pantries, and its own statewide warehouse.

Through the Oregon Food Bank network alone, 860,000 people received food last year. That fits with an Oregon State University estimate that one in four Oregonians are turning to local food pantries.

Among the regional pantries that benefit from Oregon Food Bank is the Northeast Emergency Food Program.

“Oregon Food Bank is the hub,” said A’Jay Scipio, program director. “They push it out to partner agencies, and Northeast Emergency Food Program is one. We’re the hands and the feet.”

Scipio’s organization collects additional food from dozens of local churches, several community gardens, nearly a dozen grocery and other retail stores and many individuals. Northeast Emergency Food Program shares all of that with 16 additional pantries, PDX Free Fridges and with clients at Luther Memorial Lutheran Church, 4800 NE 72nd Ave. Distributions there by the Ecumenical Ministries of Oregon program are Thursdays and Saturdays, 12 to 3 p.m.

Together, all those pantries and the Northeast Emergency Food Program work to distribute the food and prevent waste.

Among the pantries that receive food from Northeast Emergency Food Program is God Always Provides. That pantry feeds an average of 300 people each week. The pantries not only publicize each other’s operations to their clients. They also trade their food items so all of them have balanced offerings.

pantries, like St. Charles in Cully and Sharon Seventh Day Adventist in Vernon.

The Cully neighborhood food pantry operated by C3 Church, 6120 NE 57th Ave., is open to clients Tuesdays and Saturdays, from 12 to 3 p.m.

One retailer that donates regularly to Northeast Emergency Food Program is the Hollywood Trader Joe’s.

“As a grocery store, there is perhaps no better way we can support our neighbors than by donating food to organizations that can put it in the hands of those who need it most,” said a Trader Joe’s spokesperson.

Its 526 stores in more than 40 states last year donated nearly $345 million worth of food and beverages. A Northeast Emergency Food Program report cites 250,000 pounds received from the local store last year.

In addition to unexpired packaged foods, donations include fresh items like produce, entrees, bakery, meat, seafood, dairy and eggs. The Trader Joe’s spokesperson stressed that 100 percent of donations are products that go unsold, but remain fit to be enjoyed.

Irvington neighborhood’s Westminster Presbyterian Church also donates food to Northeast Emergency Food Program, according to Pastor Beth Neel.

She credits church volunteer Chelle Hammer for applying creativity to the monthly food drives among parishioners and members of the larger community.

Nonperishables are welcome weekdays, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the church office, 1624 NE Hancock St. At least one full pick-up truckload is collected each month.

The church’s drives for Northeast Emergency Food Program always include bread. At Easter time, Hammer asked for eggs as an accompaniment, in February it was chocolate and, to honor the Bible story about loaves and fishes, canned fish.

Neel said she came to the church 10 years ago, when the food drives were already a tradition. “It started way before that.”

Portland Parks and Recreation’s Produce for People plots in community gardens are also sources for local food banks. Bev Collins has coordinated the 300-square-foot plot in the Sabin Community Garden at 1907 NE Skidmore St. for five years.

She designs and plants the plot, and gardeners from the remaining 45 plots help with the harvests.

Collins said 80 percent of Northeast Emergency Food Program’s clients are of Asian heritage, so the Produce for People plot includes plants that fit their tastes and cultures, like bok choy, jalapeno peppers, tomatoes, shiso and Asian carrots and turnips. This year she expected donations to total about 1200 pounds.

Last year, she worried the plot wouldn’t make its goal of 1000 pounds.

“We were short about 50 pounds and we went out and bought pumpkins and giant sweet potatoes and delivered them too,” she said.

Other organizations also help fill local pantries – too many to name. Two based in Northeast Portland are the Portland Food Project, www.portlandfoodproject.org, and the Portland Fruit Tree Project, www.portlandfruit.org. ★
